

It seems that the state of journalism is still declining, as fewer and fewer news agencies cover news responsibly, but rather pander to the salacious interests of its audience and to the needs of its advertisers. News is becoming entertainment, and this is damaging to the public's awareness of important social and political issues.

Please do not make the proposed change as I believe that it will lead to even less responsible reporting in a world already devoid of journalistic integrity.

Thank you,
Ward Allebach
